ABSTRACT

This document is intended as a college student's guide to the history reference resources of McLennan Library at McGill University. It lists important information sources for the study of history in general, covering more than one country or region. Excluded from the list are manuscript sources, biographical sources, and historical atlases. The bibliography consists of eight sections. The first section cites encyclopedias and historical dictionaries. Chronologies are described in section two. Sections three and four treat surveys and bibliographical guides respectively. The fifth section is a subject bibliography divided into three parts: general; medieval Renaissance and Reformation (400-1648); and modern history (1748-present). Periodical and newspaper indexes are listed in the sixth section. Section seven cites theses. Each entry gives information on author, title, publisher, dates, volumes in the library, McLennan Library catalog number, and a brief annotation. (RM)

HISTORY: A STUDENT'S GUIDE TO REFERENCE RESOURCES

Scope

This bibliography is intended to list important information sources for history in general. General history is defined as covering more than one country or region. Other student guides which may be used to complement this one in allied disciplines or for the history of individual countries are:

Allied disciplines: Archaeology, Classical Studies, Economics, International Relations, Philosophy, Political Science and Communism, Marxism and Socialism.

History and areas studies: Africa South of the Sahara, British History, Canadian History, Canadian Politics and Government, Caribbeana, East Asian Studies, German History, Indian Subcontinent, Latin America, Russian and East European History and United States History.

Manuscript sources, biographical sources and historical atlases have been excluded from this bibliography.

Arrangement

In general within each section, reference works are arranged by coverage - works having the broadest chronological coverage being listed first.

Subject bibliography is divided into a general section and two chronological sections. A bibliography covering more than one of these chronological sections appears in the general section only.

All locations for items cited have not been indicated. If you wish to obtain additional locations, consult the McGill Union Catalogue under the entry used in this bibliography.

If you have any difficulty using this bibliography or the reference resources listed in it, please do not hesitate to ask a reference librarian for assistance.

Ref. _____. Ergänzungsband. Bd. 1 - 20, 1861 - 1898. Leipzig.

Lib. has: Bd. 1 - bd. 20

A comprehenisve index valuable because of the large number of important German periodicals, transactions, yearbooks, and other composite works indexed. The usual arrangement is in two parts: first an index by broad subject headings, giving the article's title, its author when known, and the reference to the periodical; the second an author index to the subject index. The Ergänzungsbande contain additions and carry retrospective indexing back to 1861. In 1965 this bibliography was merged with Bibliographie der fremdsprachigen Zeitschriftenliteratur into Internationale Bibliographie der Zeitschriftenliteratur. Books reviews, 1900-1943, were indexed separately in Bibliographie der Rezensionen.

Lib. has: 1911-1964.

Indexes about 1400 periodicals and general works in the principal non-German languages, but not necessarily on non-German subjects. Is similar in general plan and arrangement to Bibliographie der deutschen Zeitschriftenliteratur. Up to 1924, subject index only but afterwards includes authors as well. In 1965 it was merged with the above into Internationale Bibliographie der Zeitschriftenliteratur. The book reviews, 1900-1943, were indexed separately in Bibliographie der Rezensionen.
